

Los Angeles Report

August 2017

CONTENTS

* Project 1: "SteelCraft", Long Beach

Container Village: SteelCraft

Project Overview

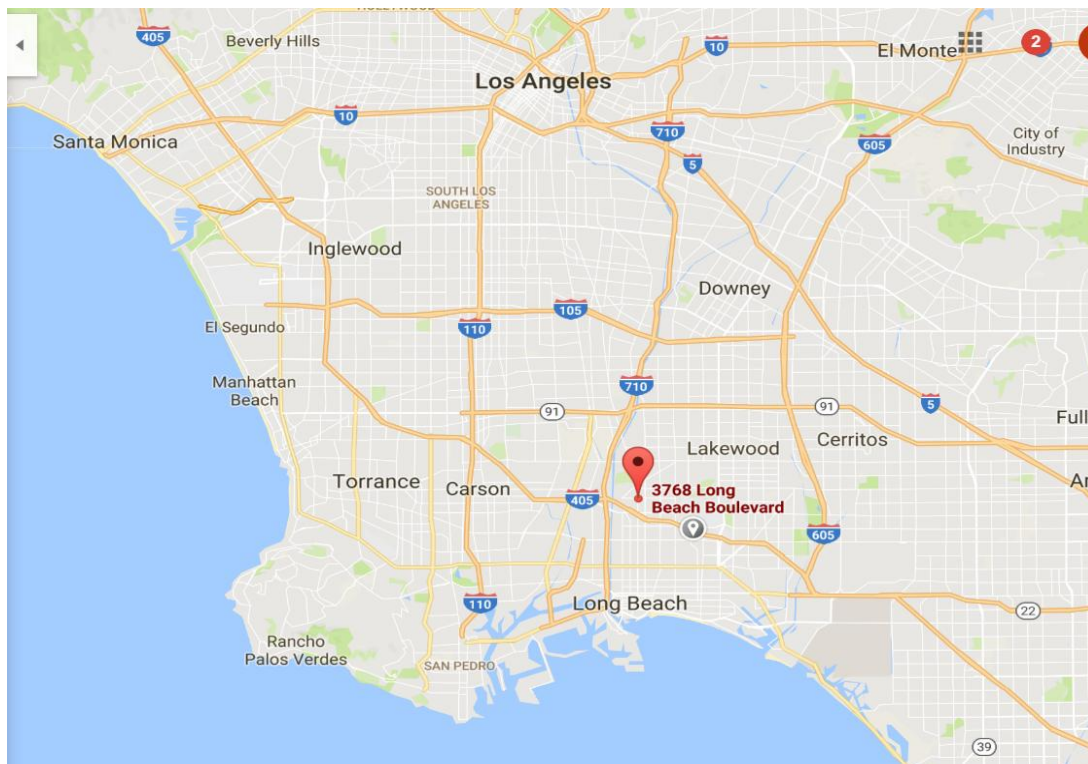

SteelCraft is located about 30km from Los Angeles. This installation is unique as it got the approval from the city building , security and health departments to be a container complex with full permanent utilities and public restrooms (there are several housing projects using containers but this is the first time an hospitality complex for the general public use got authorization from the city).

SteeCraft is basically a communal dining space made of several local eateries and aims to become a place that unites people around food, a good drink and a nice environment. "SteelCraft Values Restoration, the Celebration of Craft, and the Building of Community." (from the official homepage, link below)

Project Details

1. Container , Food Village
2. Location: 3768 Long Beach Blvd. Long Beach, CA 90807
3. Target Customer: Everyone
4. Built in: February 2017
5. Website: <https://www.steelcraftlb.com/>

Location Map

There is a total of 8 eateries with a large variety of high quality, pizza, ramen, coffee, shaven ice, chocolate, beer and waffles.

Each place opens and closes at a different time, please refer to the website for more information.

Many seats, mostly communal to generate new encounters and discussions between groups of people.

View from the exterior, entrance.

Some more seats

Close up on the different installations: parking facilities for people with disabilities, public restrooms and installation for permanent utilities.

