- Project 2: 137 Pillars Suites & Residences Bangkok

1. MAGPIE CAFE

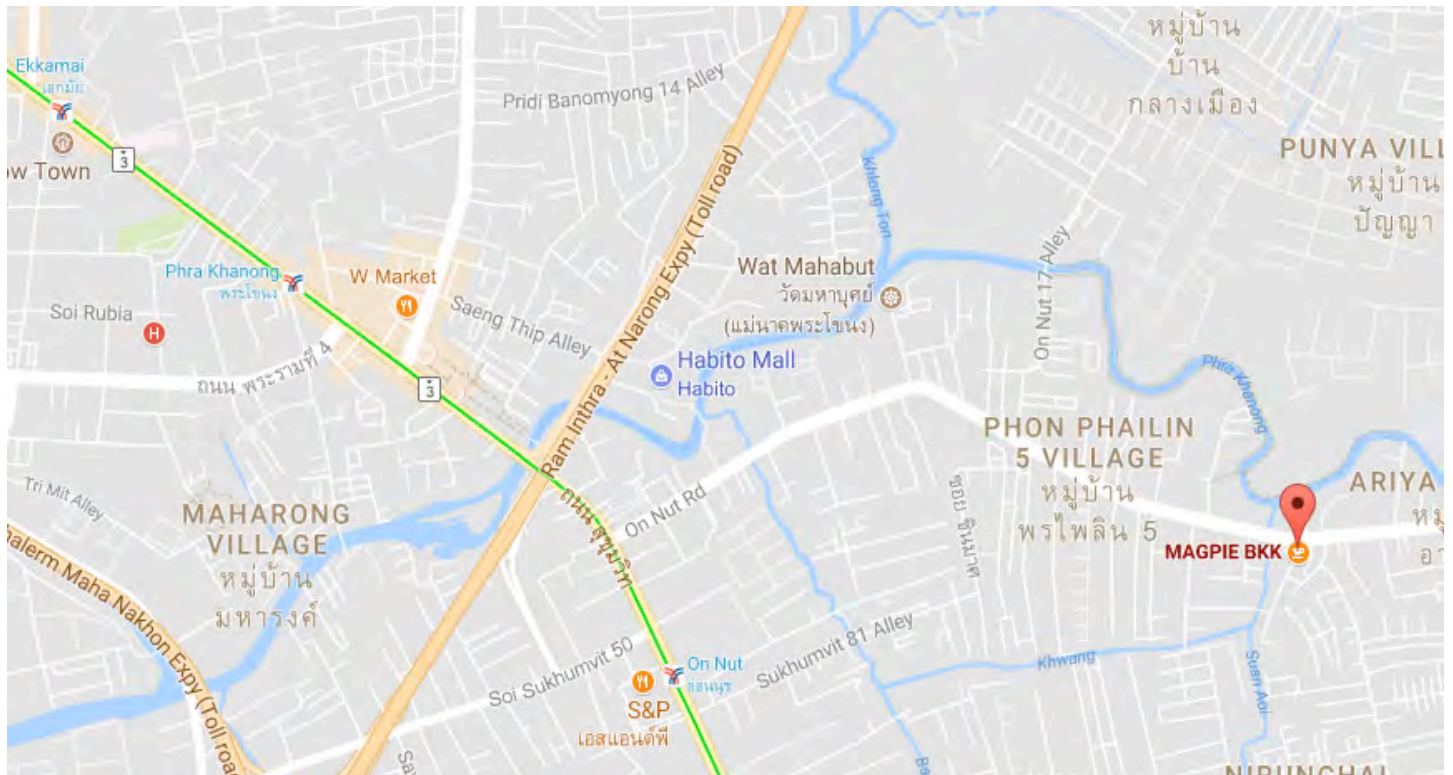

Project Overview

Located in the up and coming Lower East Side of Bangkok, Magpie is a casual café by day and offers fine dining options by night. Set in a converted 5-storey shophouse which used to be a noodle shop, the café was designed by renowned Thai designer Noppadol Baholyodhin, who is currently creative director for top Thai silk & fashion brand Jim Thompson. The name 'Magpie' reflects the owner's personality of collecting things. The space features terrazzo floors and mid-century furniture pieces upholstered in velvet or bold, graphic prints, while the ground floor has a garden theme with dangling ferns and leaf prints.

Location map

Magpie Café is located on the corner of Onnut Soi 28, in the up and coming lower East side of Bangkok. Closest BTS sky train station is On Nut.

The first floor of this tiny, 5-storey building has an elegant décor inspired by an European orangerie – white walls have been hand-painted with green chinoiserie patterns, vases full of flowers, plants and ferns hang from the ceiling, and natural light filters in through huge windows.

The space's terrazzo floors and mid-century furniture pieces are upholstered in velvet or bold, graphic prints.

2. 137 PILLARS SUITES & RESIDENCES BANGKOK

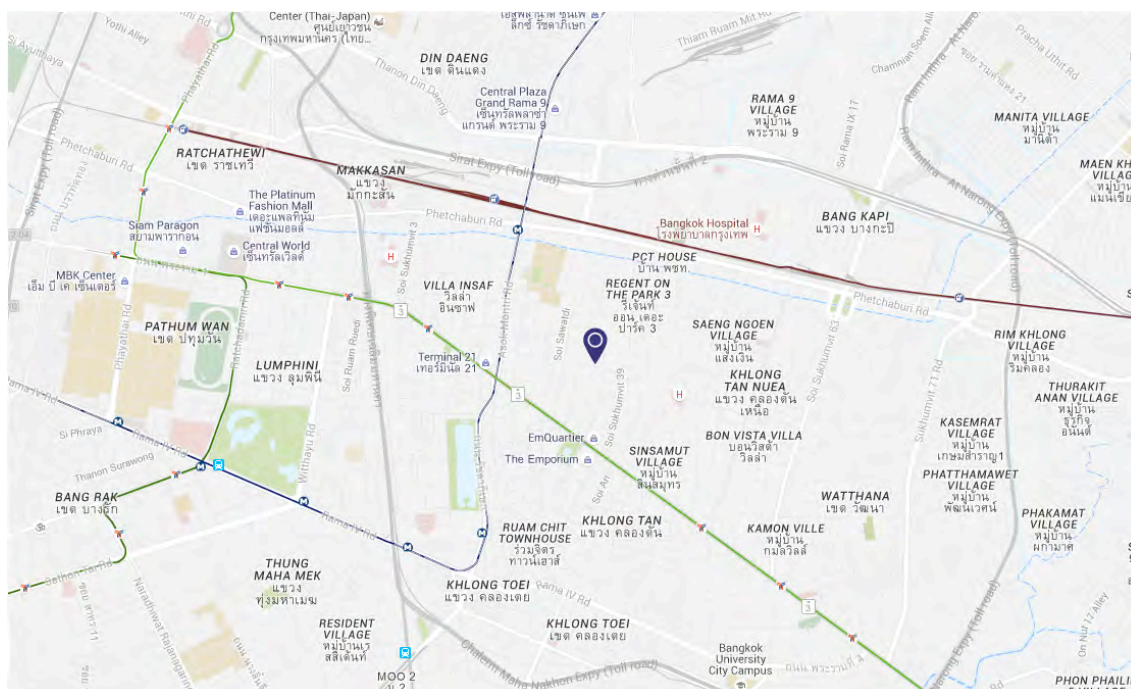

Project Overview

The new luxury hotel brand 137 Pillars Hotels & Resorts was created by the Wongphanlert family. Following the success of the 30-suite 137 Pillars House Chiang Mai, they have now opened another boutique hotel in Bangkok. A third property, 137 Pillars Estate Phuket, is scheduled to open early 2019 on the North Peninsula of Kata Beach.
